

You are going to create mayhem if you allow cell phone usage aboard planes. People are packed in like sardines, elbows to elbows as it is. Are you seriously considering allowing people to talk incessantly for hours on a plane. Have you never been on a bus or on a line at a bank or store and been forced to listen to someone's inane conversation. Plus there is a security issue, hijackers would now be able to communicate with each other, on the ground and in the air.